SEVERE WEATHER ONCE AGAIN FORECASTED FOR THE REGION

April 28, 2023

Dear RV Guests,

The National Weather Service has issued a potential severe weather advisory starting tonight between the hours of 10:00 p.m., and extending through Saturday morning at 2:00 a.m. The forecasted activity is the result of a cold front predicted to trigger severe thunderstorm activity with gusty winds capable of exceeding 70 mph. A potential for hail and brief heavy down pours can also be expected with the passing of the front.

We strongly advise that all RV guests take precautionary measures to ensure safety, health and well-being well in advance of the storm's arrival. We are asking campers to secure any loose items around their campsites that could easily be tossed and cause damage to neighboring property, and to re-check tie downs to make sure campers are properly secured. Please try to avoid travel during these times and make every attempt to seek safe shelter until the storm has passed.

Sincerely,

Joe E. Vega
Parks Director
